Campaign overview

The NFWI has been campaigning for the elimination of Violence Against Women (VAW) since 2008; raising awareness of the nature, extent and impact of all forms of VAW.

Since 2012, NFWI-Wales has worked with Joyce Watson MS, Member of the Senedd for Mid and West Wales to engage male ambassadors in speaking out against male violence against women during the 16 Days of Activism against Gender-Based Violence (25 November to 10 December) and to spread the message that violence against women is unacceptable and will not to be tolerated. Engaging with boys and men is crucial in challenging the inequalities and attitudes that cause violence against women.

WIs across the country have taken part by recruiting local male groups and decision-makers to pledge their support to never use, excuse or remain silent about men's violence against women.

By signing the Not in my Name pledge and wearing a white ribbon, men across the country can send out a powerful message – that domestic abuse is never acceptable, should never be ignored and must never be excused.

What do we mean by VAW?

VAW is a systematic abuse of women's essential human rights and a form of discrimination against women. It is both a cause and a consequence of inequality. It includes domestic abuse, rape and other sexual offences, stalking, 'honour'-based abuse (including female genital mutilation, forced marriage, and 'honour' killings), coercive control as well as many others, including offences committed online.

Prevalence of VAW

- Globally, 1 in 3 women will experience physical or sexual violence during their lifetime.
- Two women are murdered every week in the UK by a partner or ex-partner.
- An estimated 1.4 million women in England and Wales experienced domestic abuse in the year ending March 2023.
- An estimated 798,000 women experienced sexual assault (including attempts) in the year ending March 2022.
- Welsh Women's Aid research has found that four out of five women in Wales have experienced some form of sexual harassment at work.
- Plan International UK has found that 75% of girls aged 12 - 21 in the UK have experienced some form of public sexual harassment in their lifetime.
- 3000 offences of violence against women and girls are recorded by the police every day with an increase of 37% between 2018 and 2023.
- It is estimated that approximately 137,000 women and girls in England and Wales have undergone Female Genital Mutilation (FGM).
- The most common types of online abuse experienced by victims are cyberbullying and online harassment.

The 16 Days of Activism Against Gender-Based Violence is an international campaign that starts on 25 November, International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women and ends on 10 December, Human Rights Day. The campaign aims to raise awareness about gender-based violence as a human rights issue at local, national, regional and international level.

White Ribbon Campaign

The White Ribbon Campaign is the largest effort in the world of men working to end men's VAW. The white ribbon is a symbol of men's opposition to male VAW. Wearing a white ribbon is a promise to never use, excuse or remain silent about men's VAW. Annually, men and boys are encouraged to wear a ribbon for one or two weeks, starting on 25 November, the International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women and International White Ribbon Day.

Why engage men?

Ending VAW is everyone's business!

Whilst women are disproportionately the victims of violence, we should not underestimate the role of men in the prevention and elimination of VAW. Men can be agents of change and play a crucial part as positive role models to help us achieve a culture change where VAW is not tolerated by society.

The onus should not be on women and girls to adapt their lives but for perpetrators to change their behaviours. We need a culture of zero tolerance for inequality, sexism, misogyny and VAW. Inappropriate attitudes and behaviours should not to be tolerated by society.

Become allies in the prevention and elimination of VAW - Ideas for actions

- Show your opposition to male VAW by wearing a white ribbon and making the White Ribbon promise

Wearing a white ribbon is a promise to never use, excuse or remain silent about men's VAW. It is also an opportunity to raise awareness and to start a conversation.

Make the White Ribbon promise here: <https://www.whiteribbon.org.uk/promise>

- Become an official White Ribbon Ambassador or Supporter

Show your commitment to ending men's VAW by registering to become a White Ribbon Ambassador or Supporter. Find out here about how to become an ambassador or supporter: <https://www.whiteribbon.org.uk/ambassadors-champions>

Find out here about how your organisation could become a White Ribbon supporter organisation: <https://www.whiteribbon.org.uk/organisations>

- Join NFWI-Wales at the Senedd on 18 November to mark the International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women and International White Ribbon Day

NFWI-Wales and Joyce Watson MS are planning a cross-party stakeholder event in the Senedd followed by a candlelight vigil on 18 November. Register here for the stakeholder event <https://www.thewi.org.uk/wi-in-wales/news-and-events/white-ribbon-day-stakeholder-event> and here for the candlelight vigil <https://www.thewi.org.uk/wi-in-wales/news-and-events/Candlelight-Vigil-Registration-2024>

2023 Candlelight Vigil

➤ Promote the Live Fear Free Helpline

The Live Fear Free Helpline provides 24 hour free advice and support for those who are experiencing or know someone experiencing domestic abuse and sexual violence.

Promote the Helpline in your newsletters, at your meetings and events and via your social media channels.

➤ Establish a link with your local WIs or federation

Since the establishment of the Not in my Name campaign, WI members have recruited thousands of ambassadors using their strong community links (see case studies below).

A number of WIs and federation organise candlelight vigils or other awareness-raising events. Federation contact details are available on the WI website - www.thewi.org.uk. Alternatively contact NFWI-Wales if you would be interested in establishing a link with the WI at local or county level. Email: walesoffice@nfw-wales.org.uk

➤ Educate yourself about VAW and the role you can play as allies

Dedicate one of your meetings to learning more about VAW and invite the WI and expert speakers along to speak to you.

There are a number of resources available as well as training opportunities. See links provided below in the 'resources' section as a starting point.

- Have open conversations within your groups about the importance of safe, equal and health relationships
- Promote your commitment to ending VAW and educate and support your networks/members to become allies

Publish a statement/blog on your website and social media channels
Organise a photo opportunity wearing white ribbons

- Raise awareness of VAW

Dedicate one of your events to raising awareness of VAW and engage the whole community.

Case Studies

Educational resources and training opportunities

Violence against women, domestic abuse and sexual violence (VAWDASV) online training course

The Welsh Government has made its VAWDASV online learning module accessible to all. The training will help you to recognise the signs of abuse and know how you can safely help. The 45 minute online training can be accessed through guest log at:- <https://learning.nhs.wales/course/view.php?id=1152>

Apply for free bystander intervention training

Bystander intervention training gives you the skills and confidence to have conversations with your friends and colleagues on issues such as misogyny, sexism and harassment and unwanted comments and how to intervene and challenge such behaviours.

The training, funded by the Welsh Government, is available for workplaces, community groups, sports organisations and other interested groups.
